Not Afraid of the Law.

Mary Goharia, a diminutive Italian woman, walked into No. 1 station last night, and, in badly broken English, informed the officer in charge that she wanted to surrender herself. Maria stated she had learned that Joseph Zanzalaz, a fellow-countryman, had sworn out a warrant for her arrest on the charge of assault, and she wished to cause the officers no trouble in finding her. Joseph is a large, muscular Italian, and charges that the woman struck him. Her name was entered on the blotter and she left $5 as collateral for her appearance in court tomorrow morning to answer the charge.

STATESMEN BALL-TOSSERS

Tariff Contest to Give Way to the Other National Game.

NINES OF WIDE RENOWN

First Baseball Game May Take Place at Old Place and Coach a Winning Team—Reed Thought of as Umpire—Rogers from the Department.

There is to be a baseball game between the Senate and the House of Representatives one day during the second week of July, the week in which it is believed the tariff bill will be in the hands of a conference committee, and members of both bodies, with the exception of this committee, will be at leisure to play ball, or enjoy themselves in any other way that they see fit.

Last Friday night Senator Clark of Wyoming and Representative Jones of Washington were talking charity. They were discussing the tariff, and a number of people at certain schedules of the tariff, if it became a law, would throw out of work, and a number of others for whom it was hoped the tariff schedule would find employment. The general question of the unemployed, the question of the 300,000 tramps now perching about the country, and other phases of the charity problem, came up.

Appropos of this discussion and at first merely as a side issue, Senator Clark made the proposition that the members of a great game of baseball between members of the Senate and of the House, charity was almost lost sight of, however, and the game between them became the important topic of this memorable Friday evening's discussion.

The game is scheduled now, and there is no question that it will come off. Senator Clark has picked out his team, and almost secured the promises of nine Senators who will take part.

Representative Jones, though not quite so fortunate, is making fine headway and will by Monday be able to announce his aggregation also.

Senators who have been spoken of for Mr. Clark's game, and some of whom have consented to act, are Thurston, Allen, McLaughlin, Roush, Mason, Turner, Hiram, Pettigrew, Clark, Wilson, Hitt, Malloy, Smith, Murphy, Gorman and Cannon. The Senate has at the present time, it is said, more young and athletic men on its rolls than ever before in its history. A great many of those in this list are between the ages of thirty-six and fifty and are robust and quick and full of activity in the ordinary walks of life. Senator Clark has the reputation of out of this material he can secure an excellent ball aggregation.

Congressman Jones was interviewed last night by a Times reporter with regard to his team. Congressman Jones was himself a fine ball player only a few years ago, and still has the reputation of a full enthusiasm in him. He has played two or three amateur games since he gave up the sport as a regular thing, and says that he put up quite a swift article of ball for several innings each time.

"I have not been able to see many of the members of the House lately," he said, "and have not discussed the question exhaustively with any one. I will get a team, though, and it will be a good one. While the House is not in session, it is very hard to get hold of the members, but on Monday I shall make a canvass. I have picked out a list of the men I shall try to secure, or shall keep them secret, as I do not wish the public to be disappointed if I fail to get any of them. However, the House is a much larger body than the Senate, and has scores of young men, who were good ball players only a few years ago. I haven't the slightest doubt that my team will outclass the Senate in this department in every point.

"I recognize that there are some good players among the Senators. Senator Clark himself was one of the best ballplayers in the country a few years ago. He played against Anson and Spaulding all that crowd and was a pretty warth article. I can't say anything about my own ability, but I am sure that I haven't forgotten all my cunning."

Several suggestions have been made as to rules governing this contest, and have been tentatively adopted. One is that no previous practice shall be indulged in by any one. The reason of this is not that the coaching would help a man along, but that it would show him how little he could play and cause him to give up the effort. One of the Senators has made the suggestion that it should be out of order for anyone to join the game who had not played during the last fifteen years. This Senator says that if the younger members of the House, only a few years out of college, join the House team it would give them an advantage. This rule may be adopted also.

One question is causing some agitation in the mind of the gentlemen who are considering the advisability of joining either team. It has not yet been decided whether regulation ball suits shall be worn.

Mr. Reed has declined to become a member of the House team. Several of the Democratic members of the House have expressed a desire to play, and one of ball, their preference being to witness a side between second and third bases, but he has expressed the opinion that they ought to be in the position to allow him to enter into athletics. It is possible that if the Senate will allow it, he may become the umpire of the contest. Reed's rules on baseball might cause him some trouble, however, as the diamond is a freer field, giving more chance for the exercise of individual freedom than the House.

Discussing this game of ball somewhat seriously last night, at which two or three Congressmen brought up the question what kind of a contest would be a sample of ball playing. The expert of the crowd suggested that for two or three innings there would unquestionably be the strong players, and that the best of the game would be seen in the last inning, which would compare very favorably with any amateur game. After this, however, he was of the opinion that almost any man in the House or Senate would lose his wind and be unable to throw the ball across the diamond. He said that this had been his own experience in one or two recent amateur games.

From the way that people are discussing the subject, however, and the number that have expressed their interest in it, it seems probable that this game will be a great success in every other way. If it is not a good article of ball, there should be a large attendance of the lady friends of the young men, and of their colleagues at the Capitol. It has been suggested that the departments be given a holiday or that the game be played at a late enough hour so that the department people could all come if they wish. The ball park has been chosen, so that there will be plenty of room. It is probable now that a ticket will be charged for the game.

MISS PITTS' DISMISSAL

Not Believed That the Teacher Will Be Reinstated.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES' ACTION

Their Decision to Drop the Teacher From the Rota Thought to Be Final—Her Trouble With Principal Lane of Long Standing. Sympathy of the Graduates.

It has now been learned that the action of the board of school trustees in dropping Miss Eva Pitts from the roll of the teachers of the Central High School is final.

Major Harries and a number of the school trustees were seen by a Times reporter in regard to the probable reinstatement of the teacher at the next meeting of the school board on Tuesday, and the tone of their conversation seems to warrant the assumption that the teacher will not then be reinstated. Miss Pitts wrote two notes to the principal, Mr. Hughes, relating to her study and minor duties of teacher. The notes were considered by the school board to be of the nature of a resignation, and thus their speedy action in accepting them as such. Eight of the eleven members of the board were present when the resignation was accepted, and action was unanimous.

The board will meet at the Franklin building at 4 o'clock Tuesday, and appoint the teachers for the next school year. It is doubtful if any action will be taken in regard to the reinstatement of Miss Pitts. The members of the board are exceedingly sympathetic toward the teacher, and it is probable that they will be very popular. Nevertheless, they say, they could not pardon the offense on these grounds.

"An offense is an offense," said a prominent official Friday evening, "and if it is pardoned in a good teacher, how can we expect a less valuable, less efficient and less experienced teacher to avoid making them?"

He said that he thought Mr. Farrow had unintentionally acted unwisely and hastily, thereby causing the whole trouble, and the only likely way to have the teacher reinstated would be for him to go to the board and make an apology, to the effect that he had by his little act of impetuosity caused the writing of the notes of resignation by the teacher to the principal. It was said that the board would probably reconsider the question, and give Miss Pitts an appointment on Tuesday, otherwise the case will stand where it is.

The matter has been largely discussed by the teachers and pupils of the public schools of the city, and has aroused the greatest sympathy for her among the senior class of '97 and the alumni of the Central High School.

The class of '97 appointed a committee to confer with the members of the school board with the view of having them reconsider their recent action and give Miss Pitts a reappointment. Messrs. J. H. and Wood called upon a number of the members of the board informally yesterday and presented the request of a class of '97. Their mission was, however, without success. The board told them that which they had already stated to the Times reporter as there was further discussion that there was no possibility of the question being taken up again. They were informed that Dr. Barnard had submitted a report of the facts of the case to the board and that report was unanimously acted upon by the committee on high and normal schools. The vote being unanimous, it was not likely that they would consent to the reconsideration of the question unless something entirely unexpected occurs between now and Tuesday to change their present attitude.

Upon further inquiry it has been learned that Miss Pitts and Principal Lane had on several occasions differed on questions of discipline and on other matters relating to school work. These differences, when taken before the faculty, were always decided, it seems, in the teacher's favor. Some of the graduates think that, as a result of these little misunderstandings, Principal Lane was desirous of striking back at the teacher, and took his present stand against the teacher for that purpose.

LABOR'S CUBAN SYMPATHY.

Much Interest in the Fourth of July Mass Meeting.

The joint committee, representing the several labor organizations in the city, having in charge the arrangements for the Cuban labor mass meeting, to be held on July 4, met last evening at Electrical Workers' Hall. Mr. Milford Spohn was in the chair and there was a full attendance of delegates from the Central Labor Union and Building Trades' Council. Unfortunately, District Assembly, No. 66, Knights of Labor, and the local Federation of Labor was not represented. Besides the delegates from the central labor bodies there were present individual representatives from Mount Vernon Painters' Assembly, Knights of Labor; Carpenters' Assembly, Knights of Labor; Steam and Hot Water Workers and Helpers' Union; Painters' Union, Granite Cutters and Electrical Workers' Unions.

From the reports of subcommittees appointed at the last meeting, it was learned a great deal of interest was being manifested in the proposed mass meeting. Mr. Spohn reported that a prominent dealer, who was deeply interested in the result of the struggle of the Cubans for liberty, had volunteered to contribute the lumber necessary to build the speakers' stand, for the occasion. And Mr. Spohn, who, together with Col. Aguerre, had been appointed to arrange a place of meeting, said that in all probability the Monument grounds would be secured. In this connection it was stated that the Daughters of the Revolution proposed holding a meeting on the grounds on July 5, and as there was no doubt all the arrangements would be completed on the 4th, the friends of labor could use the stand which they intended to have erected.

The secretary was instructed to notify District Assembly, No. 66, Knights of Labor, and the local Federation of the absence of the representatives last evening, and request that these delegates be present at the meeting of the committee on next Wednesday evening.

Dr. J. W. Lake, of the White Cross League, was present, and made a short address, in which he reviewed the situation in Cuba.

Willie's Early Fourth of July.

Willie Miller's premature celebration of Independence Day got him into trouble yesterday. Willie's patriotism remained dormant until yesterday afternoon, when he exploded it with several bunches of firecrackers at the corner of Eleventh and E streets. Several persons, frightened, and it was necessary for Policemen Cochran to arrest the lad and take him to No. 1 station, where his friends left $2 collateral, and he was released, with the admonition to cork up his enthusiasm until July 4.
